

The separate two-story quarters has two bedrooms, two baths, interesting period antiques and a cozy downstairs fireplace. The carriage house and quarters combined can accommodate a total of ten people.

East Bedroom

The city's legendary waterfront promenade, known by Charlestonians as "High Battery" is only a few steps away. A stroll along the seawall to beautiful White Point Gardens offers dramatic views of Ft. Sumter and the glistening waters of historic Charleston Harbor. Within easy walking distance are award-winning restaurants, fascinating and important places of interest and the breathhtaking church steeples that add to the Holy City's ambience.

West Bedroom

The Edmondston-Alston House

21 East Battery was built in 1825 during the tenure of the property's first owner, Charles Edmondston. Later, in 1838, second-owner Charles Alston extensively remodeled the house – adding significant Greek Revival details.

The rear dependency originally served as a stable and livery for the wealthy rice planter's fine horses and handsome town carriages. The quarters once housed the servants who helped make 21 East Battery one of the city's showplaces of style and gracious entertaining. Today, the property once again welcomes visitors to the city where hospitality has always been an art.

A Charleston carriage house and quarters - revisited.

This privately-owned bed and breakfast is nestled within the urban compound of Charleston's historic 1825 Edmondston-Alston House,* one of the first dwellings constructed along the High Battery facing Charleston Harbor. Here, in what were once the stables, carriage house and slave quarters, is a sequestered guest lodging newly refurbished for discerning visitors to Charleston.

Every amenity has been attended to – including a kitchen pre-stocked with a breakfast of fresh-baked pastries and fruit and juices.

Where carriages were once kept – a spacious and comfortable living room now offers guests a quiet haven under the shade of a large live oak.

Guests at 21 East Battery Bed and Breakfast enjoy off-street parking and a personal welcome from the knowledgeable manager eager to make their stay a delight. The roomy interiors of the carriage house have original beamed ceilings, heart-pine floors and a second-floor balcony with a view of the Charleston Harbor.

Furnishings include attractive antiques as well as comfortable couches and luxury bedding for a restful Charleston stay. It is an ideal accommodation for couples celebrating a special occasion, traveling families, and the business traveler.

Enjoy breakfast in the dining room or on the second floor balcony with its view of the Charleston Harbor.

Upstairs, the former hayloft now serves as a master bedroom overlooking the garden. The loft's original doors have been re-installed as interior shutters preserving authentic architectural detail.

The original brick walls and antique furnishings of the upstairs sitting room, formerly the grooms' dwelling, create an interesting and relaxing environment.

The first floor piazza of The Edmondston-Alston House offers guests an early morning location for a cooked-to-order breakfast or an afternoon respite to enjoy the harbor breezes.
